WELCOME to the MAN ENOUGH EXPERIENCE

Men are different these days. We're in delivery rooms and day care centers and that's great. But let's not get carried away. Men should never be confused with women. We are fundamentally different from women. The difference is in our jeans.

That's the kind of humor you'll find in MAN ENOUGH. Sure, it's naughty, but so is Shakespeare. And Chaucer. And General Hospital.

We're taking our place among the literary greats. OK, not really, but we have noticed a certain crassness creeping into the language these days. Obscenity is taking the place of wit, and that's a genuine literary tragedy. We want to reintroduce you to the clever turning of a phrase, the subtle humor of the double entendre and the punch of a well-placed pun. We believe no one need be offended by our sense of humor.

Don't misunderstand. There are some real macho lines in the game, and you may be successful if you use them. That's because they appeal to a particular kind of character. Hey, some women like that kind of stuff. You may not know any, but we knew a couple when we were much younger.

Our point is, don't be a knuckle-dragging Neanderthal. Evolution is our friend. Remember, try to walk upright at all times, and don't breathe through your mouth. The women of MAN ENOUGH are gorgeous, but that's merely their most obvious trait. Looks can be deceiving. They're not bimbos and they won't take kindly to being treated like a piece of meat.

Oh, and about the pictures. We do admit that we're into T&A — testosterone and adrenaline that is. We're especially proud of the action sequences. We made MAN ENOUGH about the things that we know. Altitude and airspeed. Sight picture and trigger control. Leather and lace. So take a walk on the wild side and find out if you're MAN ENOUGH.

Go on, enjoy the game. Thanks for playing.

THE GAME

It has been one hell-of-a-morning. Your girlfriend of two days just told you to bag it. Your boss told you that she is putting you on notice. Even your sister called you up to bust your chops. Chicks. You can't live with 'em and you can't kill 'em. What's a guy to do...?

The adventure begins when you meet your old friend Nick for drinks at Tuesday's. Damn! He's got women dripping off him. Nick listens to your troubles and suggests a plan of action. Well, what could it hurt!

Finish your drink, get in your convertible, and go visit the MAN ENOUGH dating service. "Talk to Jeri", Nick says with a sly smile. "She'll take care of you."

When you see Jeri, your forebrain cuts out completely. All caution is thrown to the wind and you try out some of your best lines. You'll do anything, say anything, eat anything, just to get a date with her. Do what you do best... grovel.

If you convince Jeri that you're not too much of a jerk, she'll give you a chance to win a date with her. But first you'll need to survive a date with five of her special clients to prove you're MAN ENOUGH.

You'll meet the five women at the Iron Maiden gym, and you'll quickly learn that they're not just curvy leotards. You'll have conversations with each one, choosing among three different lines of dialogue. Choose carefully, because only one is correct.

These women know what they like, and won't hesitate to let you know when you come up a little...ah, short? Watch their faces as the full-screen images show you the range of their emotions. Listen to their voices, because the tone is as important as the words. It's pleasure to pain, and everything in between.

Oh, and don't worry about keeping score. The women do that for you. When you're doing well, Jeri drops in to compliment you. If you're not doing so hot, she encourages you to do better.

So, are you MAN ENOUGH?

INSTALLATION

The following procedure assumes that your computer is turned on and that you are entering commands at the DOS prompt. If you are running MS-Windows or any version of a DOS shell program, you must exit or quit out of them and enter the INSTALL commands for MAN ENOUGH at the DOS prompt. If you encounter any problems during the following procedure, please refer to the TROUBLESHOOTING section starting on page 9.

1) Place the CD in your CD-ROM drive.

2) Type the letter of the CD-ROM drive followed by a colon and press [ENTER]. For example, if your CD-ROM drive is drive D, you would type D: and press [ENTER].

3) Type INSTALL and press [ENTER].

4) The Tsunami logo screen will appear followed by a prompt asking if you are ready to install MAN ENOUGH. Click on OK or press [ENTER] to begin the installation procedure. Click on QUIT to exit the program without installing the game.

5) An on-screen prompt will appear to confirm your sound card type. Click on OK or press [ENTER] if the indicated selection is correct. To change the selection, click on CHANGE SELECTIONS to bring up the Sound Options menu. Now click on the incorrect selection to see the other available choices. Click on your new selection. Click on OK when you are satisfied.

6) During the installation process, you will be prompted for a game directory name (where you wish the necessary game files to reside on your hard drive). Clicking on OK or pressing [ENTER] to choose the default, C:\MAN, is recommended. Advanced users can substitute a different drive letter and/or game directory name at the prompt. Click on QUIT to exit without installing the game.

7) After completing the installation process, you will still need to have the CD in your CD-ROM drive when you are playing the game.

STARTING THE GAME

The install program has placed selected game files into the game directory on your hard disk. The game directory is C:\MAN unless you specified a different drive and/or name during the install procedure. The remainder of the files necessary to play MAN ENOUGH are on the CD.

Before you can begin play you must insert the CD into your CD-ROM drive. Switch to the drive where you installed the game files by typing C: (or the drive you specified, if different) and pressing [ENTER]. Then make MAN (or the directory you specified, if different) the current directory by typing CD \[game directory name] and press [ENTER]. For example, if you selected the default C:\MAN (which is recommended), you would type C: [ENTER] CD \MAN [ENTER] Next, type the word MAN and press [ENTER]. The title screen will appear and the game will begin.

HOW TO PLAY

You've read this far...good for you! Jeri likes a guy who is thorough and sees a task through to the end. I've got a few hints that may help you win the hearts of the women you'll meet in MAN ENOUGH. The game is simple to play. It's a lot like life. All you have to do is pay attention and say the right thing at the right time.

Your "lines" appear as three choices. You make your selection by clicking on the line you want to use. You may also press the number of the line you want to say. After you have selected a "line", your date will respond accordingly.

All the women you meet will be different. They have their own likes and dislikes, their own quirks and foibles. Of course, you'll have to figure out what those are for each of your dates. If you can, you'll have a much better chance of success.

Keep your wits about you and your dates will help you out. Their body language, facial expressions and the clever way they turn a phrase all provide clues to how you're doing. The better you tend to their deepest needs and desires, the more positive and responsive they become. Of course, as in real life, if you put your foot in your mouth too many times, your date may just get up and leave.

If you have chosen to display text as you play the game, your date's responses will remain on screen for a short while. After her response clears, your choices will appear.

If you want to replay your date's previous response, simply press [F10] when your choices appear on screen. The woman's most recent response will repeat along with any appropriate images.

HOT KEYS are listed on the following page.

HOT KEYS

Certain functions in the game require you to use the keyboard (see below). These keys are always active (that is, they will perform the function at any point in the game).

F1 Lists a menu of all game commands.

F2 Save your game.

F3 Restore a saved game.

F4 Restart.

F5 Pause. Click on OK to resume play.

F6 Sound options.

F7 Exit the game, and return to DOS.

F8 End the current date and return to the gym.

F9 Speech/text selection.

F10 Replay date's last response.

TROUBLE SHOOTING

The following are answers to some questions we hope you never have reason to ask. There may be a file on your CD called READ.ME which contains the most up-to-date information available for MAN ENOUGH. If the answer to your problem is not in the READ.ME file, see the section called ADDITIONAL HELP on page 11.

Q: Every time I try to install the game my computer freezes, what should I do?

A If this problem occurs while the Tsunami Title Screen is active and the on-screen cursor is visible, there is most likely a conflict between our Auto Detect Software and the hardware installed in your computer. To install MAN ENOUGH without activating the Auto Detect Software, change to the DRIVE where the CD is located. Then, type the following command at the prompt:

INSTALL /A [ENTER]

This will disable the Auto Detect Software that checks for existing Sound Devices, then continue installation. When the Sound Device prompt appears, you may select from a much larger list of options.

NOTE: Be certain to select only those Sound Devices that are installed in your computer, as an incorrect selection may affect your game play.

Q: The game won't load correctly. Did I do something wrong?

A: Not necessarily, If the INSTALL program isn't working, there are a few things to check before calling Tsunami for assistance. First, make certain that your system meets or exceeds the minimum requirements listed for MAN ENOUGH.

Next, check to be certain your computer is working correctly by trying other applications. Finally, review the installation instructions in this manual to be certain you have followed them correctly.

Q: The message "out of conventional memory" appears while I am playing the game. What should I do?

A: This message appears if you play the game with insufficient available memory. You must have 520,000 bytes of free RAM memory to play MAN ENOUGH. Refer to the next question.

Q: How do I get 520,000 bytes of memory available?

A: Be certain your system is running MS-DOS Version 5.0 or better and that your computer contains at least 640Kb of memory. You can check your DOS version number by typing VER and pressing [ENTER] at the DOS prompt. At a DOS prompt type CHKDSK [ENTER], this will tell you how much total memory is installed in your system as well as how much is available for use.

The last two listings given by CHKDSK are the ones you want to look at. TOTAL BYTES MEMORY tells you the amount of RAM (Random Access Memory) physically installed in your system. This number must be 640,000 bytes or greater. If it is less than 640,000 bytes, you must install additional memory in your computer. Check the documentation which came with your computer to determine the proper memory type and installation procedure.

BYTES FREE indicates the amount of RAM available for use. This number must be 520,000 bytes or greater. If it is less than 520,000 bytes, you can install HIMEM, which is included as a part of your MS-DOS software. See the chapter on Making More Memory Available in your DOS manual for the proper installation procedures.

Q: Even after installing HIMEM, I don't have 520,000 bytes free. What are my options?

A: Since MAN ENOUGH requires 520,000 bytes of free RAM, you must free up some of your memory by removing some of the programs (called Terminate and Stay Resident programs, TSRs for short) which are loaded by DOS each time you start your machine. Consult your DOS manual for the proper procedures for removing these programs.

You may also want to try starting your computer by loading DOS from an original DOS system disk or a Special MAN ENOUGH Start-Up Disk. This method of starting your computer ensures that no additional programs are loaded into your RAM. See the Creating a Special MAN ENOUGH Start-Up Disk section of this manual for specific instructions on how to prepare a Special MAN ENOUGH Start-Up Disk

Q: The Pro Audio Spectrum isn't an option on the Sound Card menu during installation. Does MAN ENOUGH support it?

A: Yes, but there must be a line in your CONFIG.SYS file that reads:

DEVICE = C:\PROAUDIO\MVSOUND.SYS

If your MVSOUND.SYS file is not located in the PROAUDIO directory (the default directory name), then replace PROAUDIO in the above command line with the correct directory name.

CREATING A SPECIAL MAN ENOUGH START-UP DISK

To create a Special MAN ENOUGH Start-Up Disk, insert a blank 3.5" or 5.25" floppy disk (depending on the size of your drive) into your A: drive. At the DOS prompt, enter the following commands:

C: [ENTER]
Format A: /S [ENTER]

You will be prompted to "Insert new diskette for drive A: and press [ENTER] when ready..." Simply verify that the disk in drive A: is your Special MAN ENOUGH Start-Up Disk and press [ENTER].

After formatting is complete, you will see the prompt "Volume label (11 characters, [ENTER] for none)?", press [ENTER]. THE NEXT PROMPT YOU SEE WILL BE "FORMAT ANOTHER (Y/N)?" Press N, then [ENTER].

Next, you need to copy your mouse driver onto the disk. To do so, change to the directory where your MOUSE.COM file is located (this is usually the MOUSE directory but it may be located in your DOS directory) by typing the following command at the DOS prompt:

C: [ENTER]
CD \MOUSE: [ENTER]

If your mouse driver is located in a directory named something other than MOUSE, you should substitute the name of your directory in the command line above. After changing to the directory which contains your mouse driver, type the following command:

Copy MOUSE.COM A: [ENTER]

If your mouse driver is named something other than MOUSE.COM (MSMOUSE.COM or LMOUSE.COM, for example), you should substitute the name of your driver in the command line above.

You must also copy one of your DOS files onto the disk. To do so, change to the directory where your DOS files are located (usually the DOS directory) by typing the following at the DOS prompt:

CD \DOS [ENTER]

If your DOS files are located in a directory named something other than DOS, you should substitute the name of your directory in the command line above. After changing to the directory which contains your DOS files, type the following command:

Copy HIMEM.SYS A: [ENTER]

Finally, at the DOS prompt, switch to your MAN directory by entering the following commands:

C [ENTER]
CD \MAN [ENTER]
(NOTE If you specified a different DRIVE and/or GAME DIRECTORY name during INSTALL, substitute that name for MAN in the command above)

After switching to your game drive and directory, enter the following command

Copy AUTOEXEC.ME A:AUTOEXEC.BAT [ENTER]
Copy CONFIG.ME A:CONFIG.SYS [ENTER]

You will need to copy the appropriate CD-ROM driver commands into the AUTOEXEC.BAT and CONFIG.SYS files on your Special MAN ENOUGH Start-Up Disk. This may require some trial and error to accomplish. TSUNAMI MEDIA has found the procedure outlined below will work in most cases.

You will need to look in the AUTOEXEC.BAT file and the CONFIG.SYS file on your C: drive in order to copy the lines which load the drivers for your particular CD-ROM drive. To look at your AUTOEXEC.BAT file, type the following commands:

C: [ENTER]
CD\ [ENTER]
Type AUTOEXEC.BAT [ENTER]
(NOTE If your AUTOEXEC BAT file contains more lines than will fit on a single screen, you will need to substitute the following line MORE < AUTOEXEC BAT [ENTER])

Look for a line in your AUTOEXEC.BAT file that contains MSCDEX. On this line you will also see /D followed by a series of characters. The line may look something like this:

C:\MSCDEX /D:XCDROMXX /M:10

Copy this entire line onto a piece of paper. Take care to ensure that all spaces are correctly included and that you use the proper slash character (/=forward slash; \=backslash) when it is called for.

After copying the appropriate line, enter the following command at the C> prompt.

Type CONFIG SYS [ENTER]

Look for a line in your CONFIG.SYS file that contains /D followed by the same series of characters as in your AUTOEXEC BAT file. The line may look something like this:

DEVICE=C:\XCDROM.SYS /DXCDROMXX /T1L0

Copy this entire line onto a piece of paper. Take care to ensure that all spaces are correctly included and that you use the proper slash character (/=forward slash; \=backslash) when it is called for.

After copying the appropriate line, enter the following command at the C> prompt:

A: [ENTER]
CD\ [ENTER]
Edit AUTOEXEC.BAT [ENTER]

Move your cursor to the last line of the file and type in the line you copied from your AUTOEXEC.BAT file. After typing in the line, enter the following commands:

ALT-F [ENTER]
X [ENTER]
Y [ENTER]

At the A> prompt, enter the following command:

Edit CONFIG.SYS [ENTER]

Move your cursor to the last line of the file and type in the line you copied from your CONFIG.SYS file. After typing in the line, enter the following commands:

ALT-F [ENTER]
X [ENTER]
Y [ENTER]

This will complete the preparation of your Special MAN ENOUGH Start-Up Disk.

USING YOUR SPECIAL MAN ENOUGH START-UP DISK

After creating your Special MAN ENOUGH Start-Up Disk, insert the disk into your A drive and reboot your computer by simultaneously pressing [CTRL]-[ALT]-[DELETE]. After returning to the DOS prompt, enter the following commands:

C: [ENTER]
CD \MAN [ENTER]
(NOTE: If you specified a different DRIVE and/or GAME DIRECTORY name during INSTALL, substitute that name for MAN in the command above.)
MAN [ENTER]

DATING PROFILE-110315 BLAIR

Blair

I don't like to wait for things. You miss too much waiting for things to "develop". I just go for it, and whatever happens, happens. Life is much more exciting that way. I don't like being tied down or having to follow a schedule. Spontaneity is the only way to go. My dates need a spirit of adventure and a dash of panache.

I don't like to be disappointed. I prefer to be pampered. I like to be spoiled (as if I could be any more spoiled...but try anyway). I like the best of everything and I like it right away. I come first; and why not? I'm the best thing you'll ever cuddle up to.

I have everything a girl could ever want...so what am I doing at a dating service? Something's missing. They say money can't buy happiness, but I want to be convinced. Still, there is something missing in my life. I just don't know what it is. If I did, I'd just go out and get it. I suppose that's why I'm here. I can't find the missing piece of the puzzle that is me. Who knows? Maybe you do.

Erin's a mystery. One minute brassy & bold, the next she's blushing over some silly off-color joke. Better watch your step. JPL

My business life is carefully structured and well-ordered. Preparing cases, court appearances... all of it with incredible precision and long hours of mental gymnastics. It's hard work, a real intellectual challenge. But I've never been afraid of any intellectual challenge. Of course, brains can get you into trouble. But then, they can also get you out of trouble. I've never had much difficulty finding an easier way to get things done. Work smarter, not harder; that's my motto.

My personal life is where I get to unwind. Simplicity. Solitude. Peace and quiet. Away from all the hustle and bustle. Just me, a gentle breeze and a man who understands. A little pampering now and then.

I want a man who understands my needs and can anticipate them without having to be told exactly what I want. I make tough decisions all day. I want a man who can at least decide what we'll be doing for dinner. I don't want to be in charge every waking moment. I want to feel special, to be cared for. I hope I can find a man who's both willing and able.

DATING PROFILE-110335 FAWN

Fawn

Life is full of negotiations. Buy and sell, give and take...everybody does it. Personally, I prefer to buy...or be given. But then, who doesn't like presents? Especially surprises. It's amazing how a bit of lace and a few strips of ribbon can provide an evening's entertainment. Some people would say that means I can be bought, but I don't come cheap.

I've had very few dates who could afford anything I might put on the market. In spite of that, my tastes are really pretty simple. A fast ride on a mountain bike and a cold shower. Maybe a quick dinner and who knows what might happen?

I'm just full of surprises. Being predictable is no fun. Anyone in sales can tell you that predictability is no way to win a negotiation. I like it when my men keep me guessing. I do it to them, so turnabout is fair play. And isn't playing what dating's all about when all is said and done?

DATING PROFILE-110355 KELLIE

Kellie

My work is my life, but I realize it's not healthy to fixate. That's why I came to Man Enough. Relationships are an investment. They require nurture and care...a significant investment of time and energy. It wouldn't be wise to enter into a relationship frivolously. Care must be taken that a proper balance is achieved. A relationship should be healthy for both parties involved.

My time is precious to me, so I don't like to waste it. When I take time away from my work for myself, I want to relax. I like to unwind over a sumptuous meal and some good wine. Seafood is my passion. I suppose it's the one vice I allow myself. That and...well, some secrets are better left to the imagination.

I feel I've spent far too much time lately relying on my imagination for company. A dose of hard reality is what I need right now. Perhaps I'll find that special someone who can explore my secret passions with me.

OCCUPATION: Psychologist

HOBBIES: Fishing, hunting, anything outdoors.

OTHER INTERESTS: Committed casual woman.

PERSONAL HISTORY: Single. Goes through men like laboratory rats.

GOAL: Finding the right man to analyze.

EDUCATION: Ph.D. Stanford.

TURN-ONS: C&W music, picking up check.

DATING PROFILE-110345 QUINN

Quinn

The whole dating thing can be such a hassle. The inane lines and corny come-ons get so old. Jeri has simplified the process and I like that. No more hanging around in a singles bar or getting cornered into a blind date set up by a well-meaning friend for me. I'm my own person and I'll make my own choices.

I'm pretty straight-forward. I want a man who can keep up with me. It would be nice to find one that could get the better of me occasionally, but I'm not looking for miracles. I'm relatively transparent. I say what I think and I mean what I say. I work hard at being objective. A reporter's no good without objectivity, and I'm a damn good reporter.

I'm very competitive and I don't like to lose. But there's one thing I hate worse than losing. That's when a man lets me win. Especially when it's at a sport that's traditionally viewed as a "man's game". Play the game. Play hard and play fair. The best will always come out on top. Ready to play?

OCCUPATION: TV Anchorwoman

HOBBIES: CNN, Paintball, Conspiracy Theories

OTHER INTERESTS: Happy Talk, Making Love To Cameras

PERSONAL HISTORY: Single. Spent whole life waiting for Big Break.

GOAL: Interviewing Elvis, or Jimmy Hoffa

EDUCATION: B.S. in TV Journalism - IU (Indiana)

TURN-ONS: Classical Music, bad news

TURN-OFFS: Sensitive men, commitment

FAVORITE FOOD: Pretzels

Quinn just wants to have fun. She's a real competitor. She wants to earn a man's respect and be seen as an equal. Don't give any less than your best. JERI
